Racial Gap in Nonprofit Leadership: Actionable Conversation # 2

On May 23, LevRidge Resources hosted and facilitated a second actionable conversation on the Racial Gap in Nonprofit Leadership. Thanks to sponsorships from the Foundation of the Carolinas, Arts and Science Council, United Way of Central Carolina, and Goodwill of Southern Piedmont, over 70 nonprofit leaders were able to attend at no charge and hear from an expert panel offering remarks on recruiting more people of color as board members and leaders and senior staff, including nonprofit CEO's.

The exceptional panel was: Robert Harrington, Robinson Bradshaw; Christopher Jackson, GoodWill; Hane Tarris, Bank of America; and Bob Simmons, Council for Children's Rights. They stimulated ideas and set the stage for action-producing small group conversations.

New Executive Director Learning Cohort

In June, July and August, six new Executive Directors, who are already excellent leaders and skilled professionals (though new to the nonprofit executive director role), are coming together to learn, develop, and support each other as a cohort before their new fiscal year gets fully underway.

Facilitated by LevRidge Resource consultants: Barbara Spradling, Andrea Spears Jackson and Kathy Ridge.

Stay tuned for more learning circles beginning later this summer for nonprofit leaders!
